The exhibition showing at the Six Elzévir gallery is a new invitation to urban strolls through Paris and elsewhere.

22 paintings track slow movements like the beginning of a strange dream.
By the water, along the railway, in a garden, on a street-end.

22 paintings try to capture fleeting moments: bright, fugitive, vibrant, silent sensations passing by.
Astonishment. A winter morning, afternoon sun.
Dreaminess. When the night has come, when the city sleeps and the lights seem to float.
Waiting. On the changing river banks.
Uncertainty. In the misty fumes of an avenue, in the shining slow-motion of a boulevard.

A few luminous signs, like some mysterious alphabet.
A few birds suspended like points..

A memory song, a child's rhythm.
To forget, just for a while, the world's noise and furor.
1,2,3 ... silence, passing by.
